

“The patients love ChartWare, and I love it, too. My income is up, my costs are down and I can get all my work done in seven hours a day. ChartWare is probably the best investment I’ve ever made.”

Dr. William Marsh, General Practice,
ChartWare customer since 2003

What's the real return on your investment in Electronic Medical Records? It's not just a question of revenue gains exceeding lowered operating expenses. To account for the true impact of EMR you have to look at how workflow efficiency benefits you, your organization and the people it serves—your patients. If you document well, you can bill for all the care you really provide. If you streamline your documentation, you have more time to focus on addressing patient needs. Better resource management, better workflow, better quality of care—with the right EMR solution you get a return on investment that goes well beyond simple cost-savings. ChartWare is specifically designed with better patient care in mind.

“ChartWare doesn't just improve the quality of care I provide. It improves my entire quality of life. Most important of all, it works.”

Dr. Susan Coleman, Obstetrics and Gynecology,
ChartWare customer since 2001

Better Workflow

EMR For the Way You Work

How would saving hours in daily documentation impact your practice? The range of scenarios you face on a daily basis can affect both practice management and clinical performance. Under-documentation can compromise everything from information accuracy at the point of care to accounts receivable management. Over-documentation can create liability. The challenge in finding the right EMR solution involves ensuring your electronic documentation system reflects your real workflow. ChartWare offers a proven system that addresses this need.

Unlike conventional EMR software, ChartWare delivers an intuitive system that works the way doctors really work at the point of care. With ChartWare you can eliminate the inefficiency associated with outdated practices like handwriting and dictation in favor of a streamlined process of electronic recordkeeping. By combining outline-based charting with the flexibility of user-driven variations, ChartWare makes clinical documentation remarkably fast and easy. The end result is a better professional workflow: more accuracy, more readily available information and significant reduction in daily documentation chores that affect your quality of service and your practice management alike.

Amplified Return on Time and Training

There's no question that the transition to EMR requires an initial investment in time and training. It's also clear that the cost of delaying the implementation of EMR amounts to far greater losses of resources and revenue over the long term. With ChartWare, what your practice gains in efficiency, quality of service and overhead reduction typically pays for your investment in the first six months. More importantly, you save time exponentially in the long-term—and the improvements to professional quality of life can be felt daily. ChartWare customers report dramatically improved performance in all aspects of their practices.

Better Technology

Intuitive by Design

As a physician-driven company, ChartWare has pioneered intuitive solutions to address today's most pressing practice needs. Since 1995 ChartWare has been delivering clinical documentation software that is known for its elegant functionality and ease of use. Today, ChartWare is operational in over 40 states and has been successfully implemented in over 20 clinical specialties. What makes our solution successful? ChartWare technology is designed for doctors by doctors who understand the unique demands of clinical encounters and patient care. As health care professionals, we're dedicated to improving how physicians work.

Versatility Across Practices

A key feature of ChartWare technology is its versatility across the spectrum of health care providers: the system is equally at home in solo practices and large organizations. The proof: ChartWare is the only electronic medical software, suitable for both small and large installations, to have been awarded five stars by Family Practice Management, the official journal of the American Academy of Family Physicians. Experienced users across a broad range of clinical applications report ChartWare is the most adaptable record-keeping system they have encountered.

Choosing the Right EMR Solution

Ultimately a successful approach to implementing EMR will take into account not only improvements to clinical productivity but also to quality of care. As you consider various EMR technologies on the market, explore the range of benefits ChartWare is designed to deliver in greater depth. From time and cost-savings to a better professional quality of life, ChartWare can help you work the way you want to work.

"I can't conceive of going back to dictation and handwritten notes. I estimate that ChartWare saves me around $45,000 annually by eliminating unnecessary labor and operating costs. And that's a lot of money for a solo practice."
